Dear Dr. [REDACTED] 25X1A5a1

This note is to express my thanks for the extremely valuable help you gave me and [REDACTED] during our recent visit to the campus. As always the use of some of your office space for interviews proved to be a tremendous advantage, and we deeply appreciated your help not only in this regard but in referring some of your good people to us. As you may have observed we were able to talk this year with a good many people, including a number of the Business School types. On the last day, in fact, we did a rather landslide business. Despite the hectic pace, however, we were grateful for the opportunity to spend some time with you, and both Fred and I immensely enjoyed the lunch.

It is too early to say what the payoff may be on the visit, but at least at this stage I am relatively optimistic. Thanks again for your part in what turned out to be a very pleasant visit. If you should come to Washington at anytime please look me up if you can find the time.

Sincerely,
